CALCUTTA PORT TRUST.

THE HON. MR. MACAULAY, in moving for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Calcutta Port Improvement Act, 1870, said: I may at once explain to the Council that the measure which I propose to introduce will be very limited in its scope. No doubt it would have been desirable to have had an Act which would have been a consolidating as well as an amending measure. The original Act of 1870, entitled an Act to appoint Commissioners for making improvements in the Port of Calcutta, has already been amended no less than five times by Bengal Acts VII of 1871, III of 1872, IV of 1880, I of 1881, and II of 1883. At the same time, with the Calcutta Municipal Bill, on which, as our colleagues are aware, a Select Committee of several of us are constantly engaged, with the Chittagong Port Trust Bill, which I had the honour to introduce at the last meeting, and with the other measures before us, I think we shall be fully occupied this session without embarking in addition upon a large measure of consolidation. The scope of this Bill will therefore be confined to the amendment of the constitution of the Calcutta Port Trust. The details will be explained hereafter at the proper time when I come to lay the Bill before the Council. Meanwhile, I may say that the object is to recognise and affirm the elective principle in the constitution of that body. It need hardly be said that such a body as the Port Commissioners cannot be really useful and effective unless they are fairly representative of the interests which are concerned in the good management of the Port; and therefore the Government has always endeavoured to secure a substantial representation of commerce and trade, and the members of the Chamber of Commerce and the Trades' Association have been freely appointed to the Board. The next step naturally was the recognition of the fact that those who possess those interests are best qualified to select persons to represent them; and on this principle you, Sir, as the head of the Government, have in practice allowed the Chamber of Commerce and the Trades' Association to nominate successors to retiring Commissioners who were representative of those bodies. I think it is desirable, however—and this has been decided by the Government—that this privilege of election should be confirmed by law to the institutions which represent commerce and trade; and without going further into details at this stage, I may venture to express a hope that the Council will also be able to see its way to giving some representation to general local interests. The details, as I have said, will be for future consideration, and with these observations, I ask you, Sir, to put to the Council the motion which stands against my name.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 8th January 1887.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

Explanation.—Summary.—The normal means of air pressure and temperature are the arithmetical averages or means of the readings during the same period for the years 1871-80. The humidity of the atmosphere is expressed as a percentage, saturated air being represented by 100. A clear sky is denoted by 0 and an overcast sky by 10. The numerical means or average of the rainfall in that that district determined from the returns sent in by the sub-divisional stations for the period in question during the stations in the district sending in returns divided by the number of stations. A rainy day is one on which at least hundredth of an inch fell.

for the week ending Friday, the 31st December 1886.

CALCUTTA, the 4th January 1887.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY, THE 31ST OF DECEMBER 1886.

THE meteorology of the past week calls for the briefest notice. The barometer was above its average height over the province generally, and in the Bay. The winds and temperature were affected by the weather conditions in Upper India, where a cold-weather disturbance, such as frequently occurs during Christmas week, gave moderate rain in that area, and snow to the Western Himalayas. The winds were hence more or less unsteady in Bengal during the week, and the temperature during the period of disturbance in Upper India considerably above the average. When it passed away a rapid decline of temperature followed on the 30th and 31st in Bengal. This was chiefly shown in the night temperature, which fell from 8° to 12° in Behar. The air was also not so dry as usual. The westerly element in the northerly winds common at this period was replaced at many stations by a feeble easterly component.

The mean pressure of the week was '03" in excess in Orissa, '02" in South-West Bengal, '04" in East and Central Bengal, North Behar, and Chutia Nagpur. There appears to be a slight relative deficiency of pressure in Central and Southern Behar, as represented by the stations of Gya and Patna, where the mean pressure of the week was only '01" above the average.

Temperature was considerably above the average until the 30th, when a sudden decrease occurred. The mean temperature of the week is hence considerably above the average, the excess increasing from the seaboard into the interior. The mean temperature of the week was 1½° above the normal in Orissa, 2° in East Bengal and North Behar, 3° in South-West Bengal, and 4° in South Behar and Chutia Nagpur. The following table, giving data for eight representative stations, shows that the excess of temperature was, as is usual in the cold weather, most marked in the night or minimum temperature:—

Skies were either clear or lightly clouded during the week. No rain fell at any of the rainfall reporting stations except Serajgunj and Buxa, where light showers were received on the 30th.
